General overview

Caibidil: Volume 1 - Written Statement» 2. Core Strategy

Ábhair: 15 Minute City

The General thrust, tone and content of the plan is to be highly commended the concentration on compact growth and a 15-minute City represent real progress and the chance for Cork to become a model for best practice in Urban Planning in Ireland and throughout Europe.

However, the details are not always adequate for achieving the ambition of the strategic goals. In particular the failure to identify more development land in the city centre and the consequent need to concentrate development in the suburbs threatens the commitment to compact growth and the move to higher densities and lower car parking minimums does not go quite enough to deliver on the promise of 15-minute cities.
